Summary

As a self-taught coder, I began exploring the world of programming at the age of 16. Since then, I have developed a passion for creating sophisticated web and mobile applications, embedded systems, and chatbots. With a strong foundation in various programming languages, including Java, Python, and JavaScript, I have honed my skills through practical experience and rigorous self-study.

Throughout my journey, I have also gained invaluable experience in customer service, working closely with clients to understand their unique needs and requirements. My dedication to customer satisfaction is reflected in the positive feedback I have received on numerous projects.

As a hard worker, I am committed to delivering high-quality solutions that exceed expectations. Whether working independently or in a team, I consistently demonstrate a strong work ethic and unwavering attention to detail. With my proven track record of success, I am excited to leverage my skills and experience to make valuable contributions to any organization seeking a talented and motivated developer.
